FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

About the Only Apparent Demand. New York, May 2.-The undertone of speculative sentiment today renained depressed and discouraged, notwithstanding an apparent lightennotwithstanding an apparent lightening of the active pressure of liquidation and signs of hesitation on the part of the shorts about pursuing the downward course of prices with further sales. The bears, on account of this feeling, were inclined to cover their shorts at frequent intervals to establish a fresh vantage point from which to attack prices. Hence the recurrent checks to the decline and intermittent rables. This covering demand from the shorts, however, constituted about the only apparent demand for stocks and there was nothing like an aggressive stand against the mand for stocks and there was nothing like an aggressive stand against the crumbling process by attempts to support prices and turn the market against the bears. With the market left in this unprotected state, the bear party renewed its courage from time to time and returned to the attack. As prices were forced lower under this process, selling was forced by the wiping out of margins and uncovering of stop loss orders. Expressions on the part of bankers of the inopportune money market position for entering on any speculative campaign in stocks discouraged operations on that side of raged operations on that side of the market.

These expressions from bankers seemed to be unaffected by the passing of some of the most urgent requirements on the money market. Cotton payments in fulfillment of the threements on the money market. Cotton payments in fulfillment of the three-day notices sent out to purchasers on Friday were made on a large scale and the regular May interest and dividend payments were somewhat larger than usual. It is expected that the completion of these settlements will be followed by the return of funds thus released to the money market. Foreign money markets also are affected by the passing of the monthly settlements. The Bank of England reserve was further replendshed by more arrivals of American gold, but the holiday on the London stock exchange left no medium for speculative appraisement of that development. The foreign exchange rate here declined further, widening the margin away from the profit on gold exportations. It was on the industrial and commercial side that the speculation had to encounter its most depressing influences. These were most acute in the metal group of industrials, especially the coppers. Amalgamated Copper breaking through the lowest prices touched during the whole of the year 1909.

The speculative temper was inclined to make something of a number of supreme court decisions in minor cases as marking a uniform tenor against the corporation contentions.

Returns of March net carnings showed the eastern trunk lines rather better off in the proportion of gross increases conserved for the net than in the case of lines in some other parts of the country. Inspired intimations were given out of coming increases in rates on the part of eastern railroads in consonance with the inreases in rates on the part of eastern milroads in consonance with the in-reases announced by western trunk
